

If you could set the framework for tomorrow's education system - what would be your focus areas? Illustrate or dramatize.

1) What is the impact you want? 2) Find out the problems you are trying to solve. 3) Find out why you are changing something? A lot of things are already good, we are not asking to reinvent things. Just do some adjustments based on research.

Norway: With the new curriculum LK20, that focuses on learning through the 6 C's, we feel that we have a lot of help in getting started and achieving the goals of deeper learning. UK: Have a curriculum that values soft skills as well as academics.

1) We want to erase the questions "Why?" WHY are we learning that? WHY is it important? WHAT can we use this for? 2) Seeing learning in isolation and focus on grades with no applicability.

Norway: -if i could strip down the teachers plans, maybe i would have the time to learn them what life really is about.: ( the 7 c's)

We want equal rights for soft skills compared to the harder skills. We want to introduce a new measurement-system for the soft skills, so that parents and students would start thinking of Them as important
